5. Objectives of the Event: Objectives of intellectual property refer to the purposes or protection granted to creators of innovative intellectual creations. Intellectual property (IP) rights serve the important purpose of ensuring that creators will be recognized for their efforts and protected from infringement. When they are sure that their works are protected, creators are more likely to come up with more new creations. As such, IP also helps to promote creativity and innovation. There are many different forms of IP, each of which is protected by a certain type of IP rights.

6. Speaker details (a) National (b) International including country:

- IPRs can enhance our business market value.
- IPRs can help us stand out from the competition.
- IPRs can be accessible to those in need.
- IPRs can enhance opportunities related to expertise in business.

12. Keep take aways by the attendees:

IP has its own unique features to distinguish itself from other types of rights. These features are:

- Territorial – Unlike immovable property, IP property is commonly used in other countries. Therefore, IP related issues tend to be resolved according to local national laws of the countries (we, ind).
- Exclusive right to owners – This means that parties other than the owner do not have the right to use the IP without permission.
- Assignable – Since an IP is a form of rights, it can be assigned. It can be sold, purchased, licensed, hired, or attached.
- Indefinite use – In most cases, IP rights are enshrined in objects with indefinite use of IP rights subsisting in the same type of object.
- Subject to Public Policy – IP rights need to comply with public policy. While owners of IP seek to achieve adequate remuneration, they also have to make sure that consumers can use their creations without undue inconvenience.
- Indivisible – Multiple parties can have interests in an original creation without having an effect on the interests of other right holders on the same item. Due to its non-divisible nature, IP is a resource that cannot be exhausted.

- Artificial Intelligence and machine learning, like many other fields, are transforming engineering. Even if these inventions seem to be "everywhere," we shouldn't forget how amazing they are and the fantastic things they encourage us to do individually and collectively. Artificial intelligence and machine learning can lead to a shift in an engineer's everyday task list, but also enable them to do things they never imagined to do before.
- One of the main events of the new industrial revolution is the creation of the Internet of Things (IOT). For the bulk of companies seeking to improve competitiveness and wealth management, digital change has become unavoidable.
- The Industrial Internet of Things (IOT) helps them operate scalable manufacturing processes at low costs by delivering high-speed and effective systems.
- At the medical center where you work, patients are used to being treated by robotic first responders and having their health conditions and even minor surgical procedures handled remotely.
- This future network will be powered by limitless connectivity that will dynamically adapt to realize an agile, robust, resilient, and open network framework.
- 6G will enable innovative, futuristic use cases that, when deployed on a massive scale, will transform the way we live and work in remarkable ways.
